Dear Colleagues:

In these difficult, important and, as we hope, groundbreaking days for you, we are expressing brotherly solidarity and support in your fight for freedom and democracy.

We are under the enormous impression of your determination to fight for your fundamental and inalienable rights and your sacrifice in providing the assistance to the wounded as a result of actions of the violence apparatus.

We condemn the use of force, terror and torture, about which we learn from the media and direct eyewitness accounts, and which in the future should be investigated and prosecuted.

You can be sure that we are with you these days, with all those in your country who courageously claim their rights, just as exactly 40 years ago in Poland when the Solidarity movement was born. Special words of support are addressed to the Belarusian students of our Faculty.
